

This is a line graph comparing the average effects of a medicine and placebo on two groups. Is there enough of a difference between medicine and placebo to market the drug as effective?